Travel, Trials, and Testimonies

Did you ever have one of those times when your words came back to haunt you? As I reread our May newsletter preparing for this edition, I realized that we were put to the test this month. I said, "You can trust Him, so do it." Now we are required to do so. During a planned trip to Nebraska, (we were scheduled to sing 5 times), we experienced some mechanical difficulties. Only 30 miles from home, our trailer blew a tire, and we had to leave it alongside the highway while we took the tire to be replaced. An hour and a half later, we had replaced the tire and were on our way. Having left early, we were still on schedule, so far. However, just another 50 miles down the road, the RV began to buck and snort, and finally decided to blow it's top. We were able to get it to the end of an off-ramp by Squaw Creek truck stop just south of Mound

City, MO. Now it was a bigger challenge, because Jerome, our sound man and resident mechanic, wasn't with us for this trip. AAA said our tow truck should arrive within about 45 minutes, and they were close. 2 and a half hours later, we were hooked up and headed back to whole story to my wife Jenni, and told her about my ride with the tow truck driver. It seemed that he and I had much in common family wise, and we had a great time talking for the 2 hour ride back. During that time, I was able to give him my testimony, and we talked about some struggles in his life. Just before he pulled away, he thanked me and said he needed to get back into church. I don't know the final outcome, but God does.

KC. What had begun as a 4 hour drive to Nebraska had turned into a very expensive round trip to nowhere.

All along, I kept wondering why God allowed this to happen when it would have been so much better for us to be singing. The answer came a few days later when I was relating the

The RV is still not fixed, but Jerome thinks it's probably something minor and it should be back on the road soon. God will supply the finances to fix it in His time, too. We're traveling to Alabama this week, and He's already taken care of needs for that.

Maybe God wants us to think a little more about the message and less about the music.

Maybe that's a good lesson for all of us.

You can trust Him. So do it.

Prayer Requests

- Travel safety - lots of miles to go this month
- RV repair - finances to get it back in shape
- Pray that our schedule fills in some empty spaces toward the end of the year.
- Finances for National Quartet Convention - we are in need of about $1100 for this event. Well worth the outlay, but expensive just the same.
- Some home support needs. Pray that God lays some of these on the hearts of His people to step into.
- Prayer partners. If you'd like to join the team in this capacity, please contact us and we'll plug you in!

He's Coming Back

Chorus:

He's coming back to take his waiting children home
It won't be long before we stand beside his throne
We're listening for the trumpet when we'll see the clouds roll back
The sweetest words I ever heard were "Jesus is coming back"

Verse 1

The people stood there gazing as they watched him rise away
The sight was so amazing no one had a word to say

Then angels stood among them saying "Why are you still here?"

You know He's coming back again, it's time to get in gear.

Verse 2

The years have come and gone now, and the Comforter has come

We know it won't be long now, but our work is far from done

Oh, saints don't get discouraged when the evil ones attack

Just lift your eyes up toward the sky, cause Jesus is coming back.
